1 . Main changes

- In 2026, 27 items have been added to the Consumer Prices Index including owner occupiers' housing costs (CPIH) basket and 19 items have been removed, resulting in a total of 760 items.
- The same changes have been made to the Consumer Prices Index (CPI) and Retail Prices Index (RPI) baskets.
- Additions include houmous, alcohol-free beer, pet grooming, motorhomes and dashboard cameras.
- Removals include sheets of wrapping paper, and bottled premium lager bought in pubs and restaurants.

2 . Overview of basket update

The basket contents for 2026 are summarised in Annexes A and B of the accompanying dataset, and the changes from last year are discussed in this article and listed in Tables 2 and 3 of the same dataset. The article describes the updating of items whose prices are collected in-store and online, though it refers to the grocery scanner data that is being used from the February 2026 index.

The shopping basket

Consumer price inflation is the rate at which the prices of goods and services bought by households rise or fall. Imagine a large "shopping basket" containing those goods and services. As the prices of the items change, so does the total cost of the basket. Movements in consumer price indices represent this change.

Within each calendar year, the basket contents are fixed so that changes reflect only changes in prices, and not variations in the quality and quantity of items purchased.

However, the basket contents and associated expenditure weights are updated annually. This is important to avoid potential biases that might otherwise develop, for example, because of the development of new goods and services. These procedures also help to ensure that the indices reflect longer-term trends in consumer spending.

Changes to the items and associated weights are introduced in the February index each year, but prices are collected for both old and new items in January. This means that the figures for each year can be "chain-linked" to form a long-run price index spanning many years. In other words, price changes between December and January are based on the old basket, while price changes between January and subsequent months are based on the new basket.

From the February 2026 index (to be published on 25 March 2026), we will introduce groceries scanner data into our consumer price inflation statistics. Scanner data will cover approximately 50% of the groceries market, with the remainder continuing to be covered through the existing in-store and online collections.

There are many benefits to using scanner data, including improved product and geographical coverage, improved ability to capture price variation within a month, inclusion of more discount types, and more granular expenditure information.

More information on our use of scanner data is available in our Overview of how we use scanner data in consumer price inflation statistics: January 2026 article. The effect of using the data is described in our Impact analysis on transformation of UK consumer price statistics: January 2026 article.

Representative items

For grocery scanner data, we have information on the full range of products sold by the scanner retailers. However, for traditional data collection in-store and online, a sample of specific goods and services must be selected that gives a reliable measure of price movements overall.

Several factors are considered when choosing these representative items, including:

- ease of finding and pricing the product
- availability throughout the year
- amount spent on a particular item or group of items
- variability of prices within a class
- an analysis of the balance across the basket

The allocation of items to groups can be analysed using a combination of weight and variability to help decide whether more items are needed in a particular part of the basket. Table 1 includes summary information.

Table 1: Allocation of items to Consumer Prices Index including owner occupiers' housing costs (CPIH) divisions in 2026

	CPIH Weight, February 2026 [Note 3] (%)	Observed variation in price changes within division [Note 1]	Representative items [Note 2] [Note 3] (% of total)
1 Food and non-alcoholic beverages	8.7	Medium	25
2 Alcohol and tobacco	2.9	Low	4
3 Clothing and footwear	4.5	Low	12
4 Housing and household services	31.4	High	5
5 Furniture and household goods	4.3	Medium	10
6 Health	2.1	Low	3
7 Transport	11.1	Low	7
8 Communication	1.9	Medium	2
9 Recreation and culture	12.0	Medium	18
10 Education	2.7	Low	1
11 Restaurants and hotels	11.0	Low	6
12 Miscellaneous goods and services	7.5	Low	10

Notes

1. Based on an analysis of variation in price changes between the items chosen to represent each division during 2021 to 2025.
2. These figures provide only a broad indication of the allocation of items to the 12 divisions. For example, the sample of prices underpinning an item could be stratified to form two or more distinct items; conversely, items could be merged to form a single item representing a wider spending category.
3. Sum of the percentages may not equal 100 because of rounding.

This analysis cannot tell us which items should be priced, so choosing a set to represent each area remains a matter of judgement.

Various sources of information are used when reviewing the baskets, including our Living Costs and Food Survey, market research data, trade journals and press reports. Changes in retailing are also reported by the price collectors.

The basket contents should be interpreted only as representative items used in estimating consumer price changes. Additions and removals should not be viewed as a simple indicator of increased or reduced popularity.

3 . Changes to the baskets in 2026

Timing of changes

Changes to the baskets are being introduced with the February 2026 consumer price statistics to be published on 25 March 2026.

Additions

Several additions to the traditional data collection this year are influenced by the use of grocery scanner data provided by some large retailers. The grocery items that have been added are being used to represent prices paid in stores not providing scanner data and will be merged with that information when producing the indices for "consumption segments". These are broader groupings of products than the items used in traditional collection and reflect the fact that we have near-complete coverage of grocery expenditure categories for each scanner retailer. The new items have been added where we have scanner data but no equivalent price information for other retailers.

For example, croissants have been added to the baskets and their prices merged with scanner data in a consumption segment representing "pastries and similar breakfast bakery products". Adding this popular product will improve representation of price movements for breakfast items.

Similarly, baby food has been reintroduced to diversify the range of products collected. It will be combined with scanner data in a "baby food and drinks" consumption segment. The item was previously removed from the basket in 2010.

Non-alcoholic beer has been added for the first time to represent an uncovered area of the alcohol market. Sales have increased over recent years, as has the product range and shelf-space devoted to the product. The new item will be combined with scanner data in a "beer, low and non-alcoholic" consumption segment.

Other changes related to the adoption of scanner data include narrowing the definition of an existing spray oil item to exclude olive oil, and splitting an existing take-away sandwich item based on where it is purchased, with sandwiches purchased in supermarkets combined with scanner data.

Aside from groceries and scanner data, developments in technology influence the basket updates. For example, dashboard cameras have been introduced for 2026. Expenditure on this item has reportedly increased over recent years, reaching around £150 million in 2023 and estimated to rise further, as consumers look to lower their insurance costs and provide parking security.

Several new items have been introduced to represent specific markets where consumer spending is significant or growing, and existing items may not adequately represent price changes. For example, pet grooming has been added to reflect a growing area of the pet care market. Reports indicate that this service attracts the second-highest spend in the sector behind health checks, which we already cover with the inclusion of annual booster injections.

Some new items have been introduced to diversify the range of products collected for already established groupings. For example, motorhomes have been introduced alongside the caravan price collection. Research indicates that motorhomes attract a significant share and expenditure in this area.

In other cases, new items are direct replacements for the same or similar products. For example, we are replacing several children's clothing items to anticipate an update to the international classification system used to analyse the data. The new classification distinguishes clothing by sex so that, for example, children's socks have been replaced by separate items for boys' and girls' socks, and trousers suitable for school have been replaced by boys' trousers.

Finally, analysis of the broad balance of representative items across CPIH identified a need to strengthen our coverage of vegetables, with houmous being added to address this. Reports highlight increasing popularity of this item among health-conscious consumers, with estimates of expenditure rising to around £170 million in 2024.

Removals

Growth in the overall size of the baskets is limited each year to manage production costs and processing times. As a result, several items were removed in 2026. In some cases, this addressed over-representation within certain areas, with analysis showing there was scope to remove items without any significant loss of precision in the estimates. Restaurants and cafes was one such category, with premium bottled lager removed, where other alcohol items were sufficiently representative of price movements.

New World and European white wines were previously two separate items but have been merged into one item covering off-sales of white wine. Again, this aims to rebalance the baskets, reduce coverage in some areas, and free up resources to improve it in others.

In other cases, items have been removed to make way for new additions within the same grouping. For example, sheets of wrapping paper have been replaced by rolls of wrapping paper. Collectors have reported difficulties in pricing individual sheets, so moving to rolls better reflects availability in the gift-wrap sector.

4 . Methodological changes

Some centrally collected items are priced based on the position in bestseller charts as opposed to pricing a specific product across time. The aim is to mitigate against any downward bias that could occur as a product ages, but a disadvantage is that it can result in a more volatile price series because of changes in chart composition.

These chart items include computer games bought online and computer game downloads. To reduce the volatility and aid interpretation of the data, prices for the two items are being collected twice per month from 2026, in index week and the following week.

Similarly, prices of overnight hotel accommodation can be volatile depending on short-term demand and availability of rooms to price. From 2026, hotel prices previously collected six weeks in advance are being collected for two separate nights each month, in index week and the following Thursday, with the second date sufficiently far from index day that any event-specific volatility would have passed. To help manage collection costs, the overnight hotel accommodation item priced the day before the overnight stay has been removed from the basket.

Table 2: Additions to the baskets in 2026

CPIH/CPI Class	RPI Section	New Item	Notes
01.1.1 Bread and cereals	2103 Biscuits and cakes	Croissant	This new item has been added as part of the consumer prices transformation programme. Prices are being collected in locations across the country and combined with scanner data in a "pastries and similar breakfast bakery products" consumption segment. The item effectively represents prices of these sorts of products sold by those retailers not supplying scanner data.
01.1.5 Oils and fats	2114 Oils and fats	Spray oil, not olive	This replaces a spray oil item which included olive oil. The narrower definition of the new item is designed so that the locally collected prices can be combined with scanner data in an "other edible vegetable oils" consumption segment which excludes olive oil.
01.1.7 Vegetables including potatoes and tubers	2126 Processed vegetables	Houmous	Vegetables are under-represented in the baskets and so houmous is being included to improve the overall measure of price change. Research has shown an increase in consumer spending in recent years, which is reflected in the increased shelf space and variety at supermarkets.
01.1.9 Food products (not elsewhere covered)	2129 Other foods	Baby food	New item added as part of transformation work. The item is merged with scanner data in a "baby food and drinks" consumption segment.
01.1.9 Food products (not elsewhere covered)	2129 Other foods	Ready made sandwich	Two new sandwich items have been added to the baskets to replace an existing chilled, take-away sandwich. The distinction between the new items is the type of shop where prices are collected. Prices for the first of the two are being collected from supermarkets and other food shops, prices for the second are from cafés and take-away outlets, and the latter item is classified in the restaurants and cafés part of the baskets. The distinction is being made so that prices from the first item can be merged with scanner data in a sandwiches consumption segment.

02.1.3 Beer	3102 Beer "off" sales	Alcohol-free beer	New item representing the growing range and popularity amongst consumers of non-alcoholic drinks where there has been increased expenditure in recent years. Again, the item is combined with scanner data, in this case in a "beer, low and non-alcoholic" consumption segment.
02.1.2 Wine	3104 Wines and spirits "off" sales	White wine, bottle	This replaces two wine items – European and New World white wines - in an over-represented part of the basket, where we can reduce the number of items without any significant loss of precision in the estimate of overall price change. The price of both existing white wines moved in broadly the same way, so the change should have little effect on index calculation.
03.1.2 Garments	5103 Children's outerwear	Boy's trousers, 5-13 years	This replacement for an existing item - trousers suitable for school 5-13 years – anticipates a future move to an updated classification system used to compile and analyse CPIH and CPI. The updated Classification of Individual Consumption according to Purpose (COICOP) structure does not allow for unisex clothing, distinguishing by gender.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Boy's pyjamas, 3-13 years	An existing child's pyjamas item does not fit into the new COICOP structure which distinguishes clothing by gender. It is being replaced by separate items for boys' and girls' pyjamas. The resulting new items can be correctly classified when the new COICOP is formally adopted. The same is true for children's socks and pants items. For pyjamas, pants and socks, two quotes were collected per location for the existing unisex items; the new gender-specific items require one quote per location for each gender.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Girl's pyjamas, 3-13 years	As above, replacing an existing child's pyjamas item.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Boy's pants, 3-13 years	Replaces an existing child's pants item.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Girl's pants, 3-13 years	Replaces child's pants.

03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Boy's socks, UK 9-6.5 / EU 26-38	Replaces child's socks.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Girl's socks, UK 9-6.5 / EU 26-38	Replaces child's socks.
05.5 Tools and equipment for house and garden	4305 Household consumables	Smart/WiFi light bulb	This replaces an existing Smart/WiFi light bulb, which had low coverage in terms of the number of price quotes collected due to the outlets used for price collection. The item definition is unchanged but for technical processing reasons, a new item number is required to enable collection from different types of outlets.
05.5 Tools and equipment for house and garden	4305 Household consumables	Light bulb	Similar to the Smart/WiFi light bulb, this item had low coverage due to the outlets used for pricing. The item definition is unchanged, but a new item number required to collect from different types of outlets.
07.2.1 Spare parts and accessories	6102 Maintenance of motor vehicles	Dashboard camera	An item added to help ensure the basket of goods is reflective of new and emerging technologies. In recent years, a wider product range has become available. Their popularity has grown with consumers concerned about increased security both around the home and on the roads, as well as helping to lower insurance premiums.
07.3.1 Passenger transport by railway	6201 Rail fares	International rail fares	Replaces the existing Euro Tunnel item.
09.2.1/2 Major durables for in/outdoor recreation	6101 Purchase of motor vehicles	Motorhomes	The existing caravan item does not include motorhomes. However, research indicates that they have a significant share of expenditure. Adding this item gives us better coverage of price movements in this particular sector.

09.3.1 Games, toys and hobbies	6303 Toys, photographic and sports goods	Computer games, top 20 charts	Three computer games items, defined by platform, are being replaced because of low coverage in terms of the number of price quotes collected, due to restrictions in the outlets available for price collection. The item definitions are unchanged but for technical processing reasons, new item numbers have been assigned in order to allow a wider range of outlets to be used.
09.3.4/5 Pets, related products and services	4306 Pet care	Pet grooming	New item. A grooming service which is representative of optional treatments for pets as opposed to vet provided services.
09.4.2 Cultural services	6401 Television licences and rentals	Subscription to pay TV	New item reflecting moves by providers to stream their content via the internet. It will allow us to capture prices for newer technologies introduced by subscription television services.
09.5.3/4 Miscellaneous printed matter, stationery and drawing materials	4305 Household consumables	Roll of wrapping paper	Replaces an existing sheet of wrapping paper. The new item better represents availability within the gift-wrap sector with price collectors noting difficulty pricing individual sheets as opposed to rolls.
11.1.1 Restaurants and cafés	2203 Take-aways and snacks	Take-away sandwich	This is the second of two items replacing an existing chilled take-away sandwich. This new item is being collected from cafés and take-away outlets.
11.1.1 Restaurants and cafés	2203 Take-aways and snacks	Take-away soft drink	Replaces an existing take-away soft drink. This new item is being collected from cafés and take-away food outlets only, and no longer from supermarkets. This better reflects a distinction between supermarket and take-away outlets in COICOP.

Table 3: Items removed from the baskets in 2026

(1. "low weighted" denotes an item with a CPIH weight of less than 0.5 parts per thousand in 2025.)

CPIH/CPI Class	RPI Section	Dropped Item	Notes
01.1.5 Oils and fats	2114 Oils and fats	Spray oil	The current spray oil has been replaced with a new item, which while still being spray oil, does not permit olive oil sprays to be priced. This change has been introduced as part of our transformation programme so that the item can be combined with scanner data in a consumption segment which excludes olive oil.
02.1.2 Wine	3104 Wines and spirits "off" sales	European white wine, bottle	European and New World white wines have been combined into a single white wine item. Analysis has shown that price movements were similar for the two existing items and this reduces the number of quotes collected in an "over-represented" part of the baskets, freeing up resources to collect additional items elsewhere.
02.1.2 Wine	3104 Wines and spirits "off" sales	New World white wine, bottle	European and New World white wines have been combined into a single white wine item.
03.1.2 Garments	5103 Children's outerwear	Trousers suitable for school, 5-13 years	This item has been replaced by boy's trousers to anticipate a move to an updated international classification system. The new COICOP structure distinguishes children's clothing by gender. The change means the item can be easily reclassified when the new COICOP is formally adopted.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Child's pyjamas, 3-13 years	As above, this item has been replaced by separate items for boys' and girls' pyjamas.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Child's pants, 3-13 years	As above, this item has been replaced by separate items for boys' and girls' pants.
03.1.2 Garments	5104 Other clothing	Child's socks, UK 9-6.5 / EU 26-38	As above, this item has been replaced by separate items for boys' and girls' socks.

05.5 Tools and equipment for house and garden	4305 Household consumables	Light bulb	This has been replaced with an identical new item, whose prices are collected from different types of retail outlets and so requires a new item number. Analysis highlighted low coverage due to the outlets previously being used for price collection and the change is aimed at improving that coverage.
05.5 Tools and equipment for house and garden	4305 Household consumables	Smart/WiFi light bulb	Similar to the light bulb, this item had low coverage due to the outlets used for pricing. The item definition is unchanged, but a new item number required to collect from different types of outlets.
07.3.1 Passenger transport by railway	6201 Rail fares	Euro Tunnel fares	Item removed and replaced by an international rail fares item.
09.3.1 Games, toys and hobbies	6303 Toys, photographic and sports goods	Computer games, top 20 charts	Three computer games items, distinguished by platform, are being replaced because of low coverage. Whilst the item definitions are unchanged, new item numbers have been assigned in order to collect prices from a wider range of outlets.
09.4.2 Cultural services	6401 Television licences and rentals	Digital television subscription	This item is being replaced by a subscription to pay TV item.
09.5.3/4 Miscellaneous printed matter, stationery and drawing materials	4305 Household consumables	Sheet of wrapping paper	Item removed due to low coverage with collectors citing difficulties in collecting individual sheets compared with rolls of wrapping paper, which will replace this item.
11.1.1 Restaurants and cafés	3101 Beer “on” sales	Premium bottled lager	Analysis has shown that this area of the baskets is “over-represented”, so there is scope to remove an item without any significant loss of precision in the overall estimate of price change. Premium bottled lager has been removed as one of the lowest weighted alcohol items, with other alcohol items sufficiently representative of price movements in this area.
11.1.1 Restaurants and cafés	2203 Take-aways and snacks	Take-away sandwich	Item replaced by two take-away sandwiches, one collected from supermarkets and other food shops, the other from cafés and take-away outlets. The former is being merged with scanner data in a sandwiches consumption segment.

11.1.1 Restaurants and cafés	2203 Take-aways and snacks	Take-away soft drink	Item replaced with a similar item whose prices are collected solely from cafés and take-away food outlets, no longer from supermarkets. This better reflects a distinction between supermarket and take-away outlets in COICOP.
11.2 Accommodation services	6404 UK holidays	Overnight hotel accommodation, priced the day before travel	Item removed. Prices of overnight hotel accommodation can be volatile depending on short-term demand and availability of rooms to price. The 2026 changes mean that a hotel price collected six weeks in advance is being collected for two separate nights each month and this item for hotel price collected one day in advance will be removed from the basket.

Annex A: Consumer price indices, CPIH and CPI: representative items in 2026

01.1 Food

01.1.1 Bread and Cereals
